Last Rites Held For G. W. Maue

The last rites for George W. Maue, of Mokena former supervisor of Frankfort township, who died suddenly January 4th at St. Petersburg, Florida, were held Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the home of his brother Albert Maue of Mokena with whom he made his home for many years. Rev. Sidney Smith, pastor of the Marley Community church officiated. Following the services at the home, the body was removed to the Masonic Temple at Joliet where services were held at 1:30 o'clock. Rev. Mr. Heilman of the English Lutheran church of Joliet officiated. Albert Hindle of Joliet sang a number of selections. The Masonic funeral rites were performed and were very impressive. The services were very largely attended. The floral offerings were profuse and beautiful. Interment took place in the Pleasant Hill cemetery at Frankfort.

The deceased is survived by the following:

Four brothers, Carl B. Maue, Monticello, Minn.; Edward J. Maue, Mokena; August Maue, Joliet; Albert O. Maue, Mokena. Two sisters, Mrs. W. J. (Amelia Maue) Cleveland, Martin, Mich.; Mrs. C. F. (Ida Maue) Schmitt, Joliet. Nephews (sons of Edward Maue) all of Mokena: Alfred, Edward, Robert (son of Francis Maue) Arthur of Mokena. (Sons of Carl Maue) Roy, Minnesota, George, Montana, Daniel, New York City, Leo, New York City. (Son of Albert Maue) Donald, Mokena. (Son of Mrs. Cleveland) Lewis, Michigan. Nieces (The daughters of Edward Maue) Mrs. Wm. (Amanda) Schmitt, Mokena; Mrs. Benjamin (Edna) Young, Margaret, Mokena. (Daughters of Mrs. Cleveland) Hazel, Jackson, Michigan; Bernice, Martin, Mich. (Daughter of Albert Maue) Muriel Jean, Mokena. Several grand nephews and grand nieces also survive.

Thru error the name of one brother Albert Maue of Mokena, was omitted from the list of relatives in last week's issue.

Mr. Maue was born 65 years ago on the old Maue homestead farm near Mokena and has resided in this community all his life. He was a kind hearted and genial man and will be greatly missed by all who knew him.

Change Made In Insurance Co.

Sometime ago Mr. Kamp of Watseka representing the Union Life Insurance Company called on policy holders of the old Acadia Insurance Company in Frankfort and New Lenox townships. The new company as the old Acadia system of operating was outlawed by the last legislature. Practically all the policy holders of the Acadia have now changed over into the new company.

The new village auto license tags or plates for 1928 have arrived and every auto owner in the village is being asked to get his license paid up now. Get in on the ground floor and pay up your licenses you auto owners!

Will Hold Public Hearing Wed.

A public hearing on the extension of the water mains to the McIntosh subdivision which was annexed to the village of Mokena last fall, will be held next Wednesday night at the village hall. As the water main extension is to be done under the special assessment plan, notices of the hearing were only mailed to the property owners along whose properties the improvement is to be made. It is understood that objections may be filed by some of the property owners.

A meeting was held by the village board Wednesday night to discuss the new zoning ordinance which the village board is considering passing.

Scarlet Fever Closes School At Frankfort

As the result of two cases of scarlet fever being discovered, the Frankfort public school has been ordered closed for this week by the school board.

The children ill with the malady are Mildred Lorenzen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Lorenzen; and Harold Deist, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Deist. Their homes have been placed under quarantine. Extra precautions against the spread of the malady have been taken by Dr. W. V. Hedges, health officer.

Unless more cases are discovered, classes will be resumed next week, the school board has announced.

Norman Roth Sells Farm

Norman Roth has sold 112 acres of land in New Lenox township along the Wabash right of way to Fred F. Scheel of the Public Service Company for an undisclosed consideration. Possession is to be given March first this year. It is understood that a new golf course may be laid out on this land.

Tinley Paving Case Has New Angle

The Tinley Park street paving case which has been receiving attention in the Cook county courts for sometime, came up for a hearing before Judge Weber in County Court on a technical charge, but the plaintiffs lost the case when the judge decided in favor of the village of Tinley Park. Attorney A. H. Krusemark for the plaintiff property owners has re-opened the fight again based on the benefits of the proposed paving and the case is to go before a jury. The date has not been announced.

Cooking School Held at Tinley

The Public Service company put on their annual cookery demonstration in the community hall, Jan. 6.

It was an opportunity that the ladies of the town grasped for there was a large attendance at both classes and for the luncheon that was given free. The cakes etc., made to demonstrate cooking devices, were given to the Parent-Teachers association who in turn disposed of them in a financial way to increase the funds of the association.

Organize A Republican Club At Tinley Park

Cook county towns are very active in organizing Republican clubs and Bremen township has also been active in this line. All the precincts in the township have been organized with the exception of the village of Tinley Park which is in the fifth precinct of the township.

These various clubs are under the jurisdiction of a central club covering all of the township. Midlothian has been active for sometime in this line.

Monday night a meeting was held at the Bremen State Bank at which a Republican club was organized, thus making Bremen Township completely organized. J. C. Andres, cashier of the Bremen State Bank was chosen as president of the local club which numbers 15 members. A membership committee was appointed which will investigate each application for membership. Only those voters who are good Republicans and who believe in Republican principals are admitted to membership in this club.

Rudolph Hug, local precinct committeeman arranged for the meeting for the organization of the local club. A number of members of the Midlothian Republican club were in attendance.

WOLF ROAD, KANKAKEE, WHEELING AND BEYOND
"SEE OTHER SIDE"

The Mokena Development and Hard Road Association is about to put on an intensive advertising campaign to create interest in closing a gap of six miles more or less with concrete on Wolf Road.

This highway which received great publicity last year, is about to be accorded as great a degree of publicity this year.

Since last year much progress has been made in getting this historic highway paved. Route 51, a state bond issue route under the hundred million dollar bond issue is being paved part way on Wolf Road south of Mokena and Cook County has also placed under contract 5 1/2 miles of paving on this highway in Orland township north of Mokena and expects to concrete Wolf Road north to Wheeling in about two years. There now only remains a gap of six miles from the Will and Cook County line to Route 51 on Wolf road to be paved to complete the paving of Wolf Road.

Tinley Opens Basketball Season

Tinley Park opened its basketball season at the Saenger hall, Friday evening, losing a pair of close games to the Chicago Buckaroos.

The lightweights, the surprise of the evening, lost a thrilling game 12 to 10. The heavy weights lost 26 to 14.

This Friday evening New Lenox will play two games on the Tinley floor. A week from Friday a Rock Island team will play at Tinley.

IS MOKENA CHRISTIAN?

The above question will be the title of a sermon Rev. Glenn T. Beatty will preach at the Mokena M. E. church this Sunday evening. The services begin at 7 p. m.

which is the only north and south road that connects with all roads and trunk lines running into Chicago from the west, southwest and northwest.

The campaign now is aimed to arouse interest in Will county to get the County Board to survey Wolf Road from the Will-Cook county line north of Mokena to the Lincoln highway south of Mokena, a distance of three and a half miles with the view of paving same from funds to be derived by Will county from its allotment of the gas tax. Wolf Road is now a state aid road from Wheeling to the Lincoln Highway.

The Wolf Road from the Lincoln Highway south to Route 51 is not now a state aid road, so a movement is being started to get this short distance designated as a state aid road, thus making Wolf Road a state aid road from Wheeling clear thru to Kankakee.

Former Mokena Pastor Is Ousted From Ministry

Rev. J. A. L. Warren of Durant, Illinois who was unfrocked and ousted from the Methodist church this week, as the result of charges brought last fall by 19-year old Hazel Lamb of Durant, was pastor of the Mokena M. E. church in 1919.

The appeal of Rev. Mr. Warren was dismissed by a superior ecclesiastical court sitting in the Chicago Temple Wednesday.

The court consisting of fourteen members from Illinois, central Illinois and northwest conferences, explained its action only with the formal statement by the secretary, J. E. Spencer:

"The appellant failed to appear and the appeal was dismissed."

The court action is final. The Rev. Dr. Warren is out of the Methodist church for good, the ministers announced.

Miss Lamb in her original charge stated that Dr. Warren has been guilty of conduct unbecoming a minister of the gospel when she confided in him her ambitions to become a movie actress. She was a member of his congregation and a graduate of Durant high school.

Public Service to Build In Joliet

Plans have been prepared for a 10 story Customers' Service and Office building to be erected by the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois on the southeast corner of Cass and Ottawa Streets, Joliet, according to a recent announcement by L. C. Stephens, the company's Joliet district manager. The above site already is owned by the company, and it is proposed to start building in time to complete 3 or 4 stories this year.

"Plans for the first two floors," said Mr. Stephens, in discussing the Customers' Service Building, "will call for a new super-modern sales and service headquarters for customers. On the second floor we probably will have a completely furnished model home, as well as additional additional space for the display of appliances, on the order of the arrangement at our new store in Oak Park. The third floor will consist of the offices for the company's clerical force for this district."

Mr. Stephens stated that the portion of the building to be erected immediately will cost in the neighborhood of $400,000, and that the second section will be added when office requirements make it necessary.

This building project, together with that of Dinot-Nachbour & Co., whose department store was destroyed by fire early in December and who plan to build on the northwest corner, will establish the Cass and Ottawa intersection as one of the centers of the Joliet business district.

The Public Service Company's sign for the new building will be made a part of the architectural design. The plans include the very latest ideas in decorative exterior lighting.

H. V. Von Holst of Chicago, is the architect.

FRANKFORT

The Frankfort public school was closed Tuesday morning on account of two pupils ill with scarlet fever. Mildred, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Lorenzen, and Harold, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Deist, are the pupils who are suffering with the malady. If no other cases occur, school will again open on Monday January 16th.

The Bible Class and Sunday School teachers of St. Peter church met Monday evening and elected the following officers: Mrs. Wm. Wischover, President; Mrs. Henry Breider, Vice president; Miss Elizabeth, Secretary and Miss Laura Dittrich, Treasurer.

Ray Warning and Harold Pfeifer motored to Bloomington, Ill., Wednesday.

Geo. Hanson who was injured 2 months ago when he was struck by an E. J. & E. train while at work on the section, is back at work again and says he is feeling fine.

Stanley Nordstrom broke his arm last Friday, cranking his car.

NEW SPRING COTTONS APPEAR; NEW VERSIONS OF PUPPY PURSE

A WORTHY New Year's resolution—get at the family sewing cheerfully and without delay. If, perchance, you are lacking in inspiration to carry out this most excellent resolve, take "a day off" from home and spend it sauntering through the aisles in the wash material section. Not even a mid-winter flower show in a conservatory can offer a more entrancing sight than that of these spring fabrics. Everywhere a blaze of color, which is true not only of the solid-toned weaves, but especially so when it comes to the very spectacular prints. At sight of these new smart cottons you will be wanting to sew as you have never sewed before.

That it is to be a tremendously important season for cottons is a foregone conclusion. Prominence is given to both plain and printed effects. In the making up of solid-colored chambrays, poplins, ginghams, broadcloths and pongees special stress is placed on giving them a tailored styling. One of the outcomes of this trend is that cotton materials thus fashioned are lifted out of the ordinary house and porch dress class into the realm of gowns which are suitable for many informal afternoon occasions.

By the way, that length of gingham, or was it pongee or wash crepe which you simply couldn't resist buying at first sight—want to know how to make it? Well, the gown in the picture is a charming style. Even the amateur dressmaker need not hesitate to undertake copying it.

The medium for this model happens to be a very fine two-toned blue to violet gingham. It is piped in robin's egg blue with buttons to match. It would be very handsome in one of the very fashionable plain beige shades, or in the lovely lime green hue which is one of the new colors. This frock adheres strictly to the tailored styling now so voguish for wash goods. The straight tunic effect is simply a panel kinds, both at home and abroad. Latest Paris collections do not stop at the fluffy poodle-dog types which have been such favorites here, but include many proud-looking thoroughbreds ranging all the way from poms and chows to bulldogs.

In keeping with their patrician type some of these manufactured pets are "all dolled up" with fine satin ribbon bows at their necks, like the little pedigreed aristocrat made of black plush which has been having its "picture taken," as shown to the right in this illustration.

The pugnacious little bull-pup in the lower left corner in this group looks dangerously fierce, but that is just what his pretty mistress admires in him most, for when they are strolling he will be quite flattering to stage a "beauty and the beast" appearance.

Some one has aptly referred to these canine novelties as "watchdogs of the treasury"—a name singularly appropriate considering that their mission really is to stand guard over milady's valuables. A study of their anatomy reveals a zipper fastening (see the little figure at the bottom of this group) of the material cut with tabs which have the appearance of being buttoned to the dress. The sleeves repeat the tabs at the wristlines.

Remember the tri-tone effects given to jerseys and satins and crepes? You should see how exquisitely solid-colored cottons yield to this treatment. Try it! Use the material in three degrees of colors, say brown, tan and cream together or three tones of peach. To be sure, it requires lots of seamings, but the effect is worth the few extra stitches. There is no end to the clever effects possible in the way of sun-ray inlays, tiers in graduated colors and other equally as artful designs.

Seems as if those funny little puppy pocketbooks which our young moderns have lately been cuddling in their arms, to the amusement of lookers-on, are not such a passing fad as one would suppose. These canine novelties are actually invading the world of fashion in increasing numbers and

This quick-as-lightning contrivance when opened reveals a sure-enough pocketbook interior fitted up as daintily as you please, and offering a safe hiding place for one's money, lip-ick, powder puff, mirror and all the little vanities so essential to feminine happiness and appearance.

Please to observe that the happy gingham bow-wow which the fair coed is carrying is not a pocketbook type at all but a mascot dog introduced at the Army-Yale football game. Being light in weight and stuffed with cotton these pups are as harmless as a hat to toss in the air when one gets excited over the play. Somebody conceived the idea of making these gingham mascots up in college colors. The fad of carrying them to the game has spread like wildfire, where their presence causes any amount of enthusiasm among the cheering crowd present.

JESUS AND SINNERS

LESSON TEXT—Mark 2:1-17.
GOLDEN TEXT—I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Forgives a Sinner.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Heals and Forgives.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus Shows His Sympathy and Power.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus' Power to Make Whole.

I. Jesus Preaching the Word (vv. 1, 2).

1. The surging crowd (v. 2). So great was the crowd gathered about the house where Jesus was stopping, that there was no room to receive them. As soon as it was noised about that Jesus was in the house, the multitudes gathered.

2. What Jesus preached unto them (v. 2).

He preached unto them the Word of God. He always preached the Word before He wrought miracles, for to make known the will of God was His supreme mission. Miracles were not an end in themselves, but to authenticate His work. The people came, some to be healed, and some out of curiosity. He gave them that which they needed, regardless of the motive which actuated their coming.

II. Jesus Forgiving Sins (vv. 3-5)

The man brought to Him was suffering from the dread disease of palsy, but his most deadly affliction was that of sin. This miracle was wrought by Jesus in confirmation of His message.

1. Faith coming to Jesus (v. 3).

The actuating impulse of the palsied man and the four friends who carried him was faith.

2. Faith overcoming difficulties (v. 4).

Though prevented by the crowd from coming to Jesus, they ascended the outer stairway and let the afflicted man down through the roof.

3. Faith rewarded (v. 5).

No word was uttered either by the paralytic or his bearers. Their action was enough. The paralytic got more than he expected. He desired healing of the body and he got bodily healing plus forgiveness of sins.

III. Jesus Answering the Scribes (vv. 6-10).

1. Their objections (vv. 6, 7). They asked:

(1) Why does He thus speak? (2) Who can forgive sins?

They were entirely right in their reasonings that only God can forgive sins. Their blunder was in not perceiving Him to be God.

2. Jesus' answer (vv. 8-10).

He knew their inner thoughts and reasonings and manifested unto them His essential deity in that He had power to know their thoughts. He inquired, "Which is easier to say, thy sins be forgiven thee, or to say, arise and take up thy bed and walk? But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins, He saith to the sick of the palsy, I say unto thee, Arise, and take up thy bed, and go thy way into thine house." He was willing that His power in the invisible realm should be tested by His power in the visible.

IV. Jesus Healing the Paralytic (vv. 11, 12).

1. His healing was by the direct method—speaking the Word (v. 11). Christ's words are enough. With the command was given the strength to obey. That which Christ commands He gives the strength to perform.

2. The obedience of the man (v. 12).

He immediately arose, took up his bed and went forth before them all. The poor helpless man walked away with his bed upon his shoulder.

3. The people were amazed, and glorified God (v. 12). They said, "We never saw it on this fashion."

V. Jesus Eating With Publicans and Sinners (vv. 13-17).

1. The call of Levi (v. 14). Levi was a tax-gatherer under the Roman government. As Jesus passed by, He commanded Levi to leave his business and follow Him.

2. Jesus dining in Levi's house (v. 15). It seems that Levi, when he found the Savior, invited many of his business associates to eat with him. This gave an opportunity to Jesus to come into touch with these sinners.

3. The perplexed scribes and pharisees (v. 16). They asked, "How is it that He eateth and drinketh with publicans and sinners?"

4. Jesus' reply (v. 17). "They that are whole have no need of the physician. I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance."

New Whippet Car a Motor Marvel

One of the sensations in the automobile world is the perfected "Whippet" produced by the Willys-Overland, Inc., and it is direct evidence that John N. Willys, president of the corporation, proposes to make good on his declaration that "there can be no monopoly in the light car field." The perfected car, and the price at which it is offered, placing it directly in competition with the lowest priced cars, has centered the eyes of the automobile industry and the motor car world in general on the enterprising Toledo manufacturer. It makes him the first manufacturer of automobiles to enter the price field heretofore exclusive to but one light car manufacturer.

The "Whippet," which has been in production for more than 18 months, holds the national fuel economy record of 43.28 miles to the gallon in a test between Los Angeles and New York City, covering a distance of 3,559 miles, under official observation of the A. A. A. In a speed test on Rockingham Speedway, Salem, N. H., a "Whippet" recently attained a speed of 71.6 miles an hour over a 50-mile route. This was officially timed.

The same engine that has accomplished these records is the power plant employed in the perfected "Whippet," now offered at the lowest price in the history of Willys-Overland.

The "Whippet" was the first light car to be equipped with four wheel brakes, setting a new trend in the light car field. The braking area of the "Whippet's" brakes is greater than any other light car.

Details of the perfected "Whippet" disclose a wider range of colors, employment of full crowned fenders, a new cadet sun visor that imparts a smart military effect, and the addition of automatic windshield cleaner, rear view mirror, and a combination rear driving light and stop light. These additions make the "Whippet" the most fully equipped light car built in the four cylinder field.

That Illinois is one of the foremost mining states in the country will come as a surprise to many of the people of the state because it is at the approximate center of this industry in Illinois, the location of the University of Illinois department of mining engineering is probably the best of its kind for the teaching of mining engineering in the entire country.

The school is situated at the center of a circle whose radius of 500 miles includes all of the principal mining centers of the United States with the exception of California and Texas. Within this circle is produced nearly all of the bituminous coal, iron ore, lead and zinc ore and aluminum ore of the country.

The output of Portland cement is greater in this area than that of Pennsylvania, some of the biggest plants being located less than 200 miles from the university. The Tennessee zinc and copper areas, the Illinois-Wisconsin lead and zinc belts, the Indiana building stone quarries, the clay-producing sections of Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, the oil and gas fields of Oklahoma, Kansas, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia, the famous iron mining districts of Minnesota, Michigan and Alabama are all included within this great mineral region.

The metallurgical centers of Chicago, Gary, St. Louis, Birmingham and Pittsburgh are well within easy reach of the school and their nearness makes it possible to give practical demonstrations of the theoretical side of mining engineering with small expense both of time and money.

Within a five-hour train ride from the university the largest coal mines are located. Less than 100 miles away are the long wall coal mines of northern Illinois and the famous Illinois and Kansas strip mines are within easy reach of the students.

Each year an inspection trip which includes many of the principal mining centers of this district is made by the senior students in mining engineering. Upon their return from these trips they make a complete written report of everything that they have seen. The total cost of last year's trip was about $60. Similar trips are made at practically no more cost and are a part of the regular course of study.

Graduates from the University of Illinois department of mining engineering readily find places with the largest mining companies of the country and at least one Illinois man is on the faculty of Pennsylvania State college, West Virginia university, Carnegie Tech. and others.

From the standpoint of equipment, teaching staff, research work, location, environment and general all-round excellence the mining engineering department at the University of Illinois has few equals.

One of the most important sales in Illinois in recent months was the sale of the Illinois Watch company, Springfield, to the Hamilton Watch company, Lancaster, Pa., for a sum said to have been in excess of five millions. In the purchase of the plant the Hamilton Watch company has doubled its capital stock, which is now $10,000,000. The Illinois Watch company, under the new ownership, will continue to operate on the same general lines it has followed for a number of years.

The Illinois Watch company dates from 1877 when John W. Bunn, Jacob Bunn and several other Springfield men incorporated the Illinois-Springfield Watch company with a capital stock of $100,000. The Bunn held 505 shares, the rest being distributed among such men as Frank W. Tracy, George Pasfield, E. N. Bates, Horace S. Leland, Charles Ridgely, William Ridgely and George A. Sanders.

Motor vehicle license fees collected in 1927 amounted to $14,839,295.04, an increase of $792,087.18 over 1926, according to the report issued a few days ago by Secretary of State Emmerson. The total collections in 1926 were $14,047,207.86.

In addition to the increase in revenue, the closing year showed a decided increase in the number of passenger cars and trucks in Illinois. In 1927 a total of 1,254,315 cars were registered as against 1,195,014 in the previous year. The number of trucks in use was 184,564 as compared with 175,489 in 1926. The total number of motor vehicles licensed in 1927 was 1,438,779, which includes passenger cars and trucks as compared with 1,370,503 in 1926.

Fees of the automobile department will reach a total of nearly $15,000,000 for 1927, an increase of approximately $800,000 over 1926.

Gov. Len Small spoke at a road meeting held at Aurora recently when hearings were held on three proposed routes. The hearing was conducted by Col. C. R. Miller, director of the state department of public works and buildings, and Frank T. Sheets, chief highway engineer.

The routes considered were No. 47, from Morris to the Wisconsin state line; No. 67, from Marengo to Woodstock, and Route No. 71, from a point west of Aurora connecting with Route No. 70.

In 1928 Illinois will have the greatest highway construction program in the history of the state and again will establish a new and higher world's record for mileage of roads constructed by any state or country in one year's time. This is the prediction of the state department for the new year.

Illinois now has a total of 6,675 miles of pavement completed, of which 5,034 miles are on the state highway system and the remainder are state aid or county trunk lines. In 1927 the state completed a total of 651 miles of paving. Five hundred and twenty-one miles are on the bond issue system and 130 miles were completed by the counties under the general supervision of the state.

According to details announced by C. R. Miller, director of the department of public works and buildings, and Frank T. Sheets, chief highway engineer, Illinois should complete during 1928 approximately 1,200 miles of paving, 400 miles of heavy grading and 175 large bridge projects on the state highway system.

In addition the counties of the state using their county highway taxes and their share of the state gasoline tax probably will complete under state supervision 50 miles of paving, 100 miles of heavy grading and 50 bridge projects. The total estimated cost for road work to be done in Illinois during the coming year is $60,000,000.

Tentative draft of the new statewide primary bill, the most important measure up for consideration at the special session of the general assembly scheduled for Tuesday, January 10, began shortly after Gov. Len Small filed his proclamation for the extraordinary session in the office of Secretary of State Emmerson. The new bill was expected to take shape rapidly.

The following four important subjects were included in the governor's call:

Enactment of a new primary law and amendments to the general election law as needed.

Re-enactment of a law fixing the bonding limit of downstate subdivisions and fixing the tax rate of the South side park board, Chicago.

Enactment of law which will permit the Chicago Historical society to erect a $1,000,000 building in Lincoln park.

Appropriation of salaries of two commissioners of the state Supreme court. The offices were created at the last session, but no provision was made for their salaries.

Following the filing in the office of Secretary of State Emmerson, official notices were sent out to each member of the house and senate.

Most crime in Illinois is committed by organized outlaws with political protection or else youthful offenders who are caught out on a lark, Hinton G. Clabaugh, supervisor of the state board of pardons and paroles, told the Illinois bar association crime hearing at a meeting in Chicago a few days ago.

Before the assemblage of lawyers, jurists and state's attorneys, Mr. Clabaugh revealed for the first time the heart of the message contained in the investigation of crime conditions in the state conducted by professors of the University of Illinois, Chicago and Northwestern.

Contrary to ordinary belief, Mr. Clabaugh said, virtually every paroled prisoner makes good. He cited that out of 211,000 arrests in Chicago last year only 80 of them were paroled prisoners. Mr. Clabaugh also revealed that 76 per cent of Illinois penal population are first offenders and that 93 per cent of those imprisoned eventually return to society; Cook county contributes 37 per cent of the convicts; 70 per cent of the inmates of Pontiac Boys' reformatory are sentenced for serious crimes.

The chance of living to be seventy years old is twice as good downstate as it is in Chicago, while being a woman rather than a mere man gives a person a 4 per cent better opportunity of reaching at least the coveted three score and ten limit. These facts were disclosed recently in statistics released by Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, state health director, who points out that big city life militates against ripe old age. Comparative figures indicate, furthermore, that life expectancy in the United States is almost identical with that in England.

"Mortality statistics for 1926 indicate that only 16.9 per cent of the people who died in Chicago had reached their seventieth birthday," Doctor Rawlings said. "In Illinois outside of Chicago 31.5 per cent of the mortality was among those who were seventy or more. Likewise the percentage of infants lost in Chicago was a trifle more unfavorable than downstate. Of all deaths in the big city 11.2 per cent were among children less than one year old against 10.5 per cent among that age group downstate."

Illinois begins the year 1928 with a total balance of $21,811,890.86 in its general revenue fund and a total balance in all funds of $38,227,921.03.

This information is shown on the books of State Treasurer Garrett D. Kinney, which show also that the state treasurer has credited to the revenue fund a total of $914,284.01 from interest collected on state funds, for the first eleven months of his term of office. This total is $170,000 more than was credited by previous treasurers during the same period.

Consolation Found in Firm Religious Belief

I envy no quality of mind or intellect in others—not genius, power, wit, or fancy; but if I could choose what would be most delightful, and I believe most useful to me, I should prefer a firm religious belief to every other blessing, for it makes life a discipline of goodness, creates new hopes when all earthly hopes vanish; and throws over the decay, the destruction of existence, the most gorgeous of all lights; awakens life even in death, and from corruption and decay calls up beauty and divinity; makes an instrument of torture and of shame the ladder of ascent to paradise; and far above all combination of earthly hopes, calls up the most delightful visions, palms and amaranths, the gardens of the blessed; the security of everlasting joys, where the sensualist and skeptic view only gloom, decay and annihilation.—Sir Humphrey Davy.

Royal Gift to City

A royal villa containing one of the finest collections of porcelain, china, glass, crystals, ceramics and enamels in the world has been presented to the city of Naples by the widow of Count di Marsi, and has been publicly opened as a museum by the king of Italy. The museum is the Villa Floridiana, where once lived Ferdinand IV, king of the Two Sicilies. The collection fills 21 rooms, and consists of 10,000 pieces. Among the prized exhibits are several Sevres cups used by Marie Antoinette of France. The collection includes rare specimens of wares from famous potteries and glass works throughout Europe and Asia.

Expectation of Life

Modern science has destroyed the tradition of "a short life and a merry one," writes Dr. Donald B. Armstrong in the North American Review. The life of the average modern is longer and merrier than that of a century ago. The average expectancy of life at birth has been increased from twenty-eight years in 1789 to forty-eight at the present time.

IN MEMORIAM

William Rick, Sr.

In sad and loving memory of our beloved husband and father.

Two years have passed since that sad day,

Often we pause and think of you,

And think of how you died,

To think you could not say goodbye,

Before you closed your eyes;

No one knows the silent heart aches

Only those who have loved can tell,

Of the grief that is borne in silence

For our dear husband and father we loved so well.

Loving Wife and Daughter.

"THREE OF LIFE'S GREATEST VALUES"

Every person starting out into life is anxious to achieve success. Men have always been willing to pay almost any price to attain it. Success does not come to any one by accident, but is the result of years of struggle and sacrifice.

There are three factors which play a tremendous part in helping the individual to reach the highest degree of efficiency.

Brains

The world has always been willing to pay for brains.

We know something of the value of the capable individual with a keen intellect. That is why we place so much emphasis upon good schools and an adequate educational system in order that we may receive the greatest possible return for our investment.

Usually the boy or girl who make the highest grades in school make the grades in life.

Time and again the world has shown its appreciation of men of brains by bestowing upon them the highest honors that it can give.

We have an example of this fact in Mussolini of Italy, we may not agree with him in his politics, but we are compelled to concede to him a master mind.

Herbert Hoover, of our own Country is another example. He is perhaps the greatest Civil engineer in America today, when we are facing any strategic situation whether it be a flood or the Conservation of our food supply the government always calls upon Hoover.

Character

In the use of this term we mean of course a good character. One of the master minds of all time said "A good name is rather to be chosen than just riches."

The difference between the sand man and the rock man is the parable of Jesus in the Gospel of Matt. is in the difference in their characters.

If a man is to reach the highest good in life Christ must have a part in the development of his character.

The Forward Look

TOMORROW'S telephone requirements must be foreseen today; the service of the future must be provided for in the present.

In the America of tomorrow new industries will develop, trade will increase, residential sections will replace the vacant areas of today. There must be new telephone buildings and switchboards; millions of miles of new wire and cable; yet a larger army of men and women to build and operate the ever increasing facilities; more and more trained executives to manage and direct.

It costs about $385,000,000 a year to keep ahead of America's demand for telephone service. If this vast sum is to be spent wisely and efficiently, future demands must be forecast with as much precision as is humanly possible so that materials, money, manpower will not be lacking when the need comes. Only through the forward look is the telephone kept ready to meet the growing demands of a growing nation.

WILLIAM SEGGEBRUCH
Chicago Heights, Illinois

Jesus himself emphasized this fact when he said in Matt. 6: 33. Seek first the Kingdom of God and all other things shall be added unto you.

Recently I saw on the Corner Stone of a Y. M. C. A. building these words Jesus himself being the Chief Corner Stone. This must be true in all character building if we are to get the greatest possible good from life.

Personality

No one lives in a world alone, but among other individuals, groups and races. Much of a man's success will depend upon how well one can fit himself into the environment in which he finds himself. We live in a world of differences and our interests are numerous and varied.

About the first thing we learn in life is that life is a great game and must be played by all, no one having his own way at all times, but each sacrificing here and there for the good of his fellows, in order that there may be as little social friction as possible.

One among the greatest sayings of the old Testament is this: "No man liveth to himself and no man dieth to himself". Jesus himself has become our example in what we mean by the use of the term an ideal personality.

The greatest thing ever said of him was this "He went about doing good". He tried to dhamonize himself with life as he found it, and at the same time, he tried to lift society up to an appreciation of his own high ideals of living.

If we desire to have a winning personality we can not pattern our lives after a greater than Jesus, yet at the same time we must pay the price he paid and which he emphasized in his own words "If a man would save his life he must first lose it".

Primary Law Big Issue Now Before Legislature

Under the call issued by Governor Len Small the General Assembly convened in extraordinary session on Tuesday, January 10.

The special session is the first held since 1910 and is made necessary in order to protect the voters of the state in the holding of primary elections, the law passed at the last session of the legislature having been attacked in a bill of equity filed in the circuit court of Cook county.

Following the hearing of the bill in equity in the circuit court of Cook county, written opinion was presented by the trial judge holding the act unconstitutional and announcing his intention to enter a decree in accordance with this opinion.

Appeal from this decree was taken to the supreme court, but that body was unable to pass upon the questions at issue during the term just concluded, and will be unable to hand down an opinion before the February term at the earliest date.

In the ordinary course of business of the supreme court a decision would not be rendered until after the date fixed for the primary election in April, with the result the injunction issued in Cook county would remain in effect until after that date, preventing the holding of the April primary.

In presenting the call for the special session Governor Small called attention to the fact that provision of the new law relating to registration and to the qualification of judges and clerks of election, particularly in Chicago, has been made, and the right of women to serve as election officials is also questioned.

No program has yet been worked out for the special session. It is not expected any will be attempted until leaders of both the senate and house arrive in Springfield for the opening of the session. The forecast is made the session will last for a month.

Members of the legislature coming to Springfield since the issuance of the call for the special session have expressed themselves as favorable to a retention of the April primary. With this course being decided upon emergency legislation will be necessary, with a two-third vote of the members of the assembly for passage.

Under the call issued for the special session the following matters will come before the general assembly:

Passage of a new primary act. Appropriation for compensation of commissioners of the state supreme court. Amendment of the statutes which prescribe maximum and minimum tax levy rates.

Enactment of a law authorizing park commissioners, where the park district boundaries extend over the whole of one or more towns within a city having over 300,000 population to set apart a site for a public historical museum and library.

Under the call the special session convened at 10:00 o'clock on Tuesday morning. If his health will permit, Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling will preside over the senate. In his absence Senator R. J. Barr, Joliet, president pro tem, will preside. Speaker Robert Scholes, Peoria, will preside over the house.

IDLE ISLAND

STORY FROM THE START

On the verge of nervous collapse, due to overwork, Gay Delane, successful New York artist, seeks rest at Idle Island. She rents a cottage, the "Lone Pine," from an island character, the "Captain," and his sister, Alice Andover, "admiral's daughter." Gay finds the cottage is tenanted by an elderly lady, "Auntalmiry," who consents to move to another abode, the "Apple Tree." Awakening from sleep, Gay imagines she sees the face of a Chinaman peering in the window. On an exploration of the island Gay, standing on the seashore, is horrified by the appearance of the drifting body of a drowned man, which she nerves herself to bring to the shore. A bullet wound in the temple shows the man to have been murdered. Gay makes her way to the "Captain" with the story. Returning with him to the shore, they find no body there, and Gay's story of the incident is set down to an attack of "nerves." Gay, unable to convince her neighbors of the truth, draws a picture of the face of the dead man, intending to send it to the authorities. She meets a stranger, apparently another visitor, to whom she tells the story and shows the picture. He asks her to let him take it, but Gay refuses. Next day after a night spent with "Auntalmiry," Gay finds the picture has been taken from the cottage. "Rand" Wallace, wanderer, and considered something of a "black sheep" by the islanders, expecting to find "Auntalmiry," surprises Gay at household tasks. She likes him at once.

CHAPTER V—Continued

The days flew away like enchanted things. Gay had never been so happy, although she neglected her sacred canvases and brush. How could she work with Rand sprawling in the window-seat at her side, brown hand touching her hand, gray eyes holding her eyes? Every day he worked faithfully on the Bo's'n. Bemis' yacht, worked very hard for a few hours to spare himself more time to be with her, appearing at the Lone Pine every morning promptly at eleven o'clock, the hour of her late breakfast, which was breakfast and luncheon in one.

"So this is how one lives on nothing a year," she said to him one day, laughing. "Well, I am relieved, I know at least that you will never starve."

The next morning he handed her a pound of the best coffee obtainable at the Pier grocery store. He was very laudatory. "I may be low, but I have my pride," he said. "My coffee! And when it is gone, kindly notify me. More will be forthcoming."

"Don't forget the electricity," she reminded him gaily. "It must be a nickel a week."

And laughingly she accepted the dingy coin he selected carefully from a handful to give her.

Every day he went up the slope to the Lone Pine at sunset, that sweetest hour of the day, and sat with her in the window-seat on the west, looking down to the bay where the sky burned with fresh-blown gold and flame and amethyst, burned fiercely for a while before it pulsed to smoking embers, pastel shades of rose and violet and cream. And when the embers had faded to gray ash, they went into the woods, and walked up and down beneath the trees that gossiped to one another above them, and breathed deeply of the intoxicating spices of the forest—pine, and spruce, and fir.

At that hour they never talked, but wandered slowly here and there, stumbling sometimes over the twisted old roots of trees or fallen logs, sliding over treacherous rocks, holding hands like children, smiling at each other.

One night they lingered long in the forest, so that dusk was blackening the shadows when they turned up behind the Little Club, in that pathless bit of the wood. As they went on, laughing softly, and stumbling, suddenly, without a sound, they came up to one who was walking toward them, swiftly, surely, toward the shore.

All feet lay softly on the thick piloting of pine needles and dry mosses, but those feet that came to meet them made no sound at all. As they came together, Gay looked up, with keen but friendly interest to see who walked in her enchanted wood at nightfall, and then she caught her breath with a sudden startled intake.

The face that she saw in the dusk was sharply familiar, unmistakable, a thin little face that showed yellow in the gloaming, like yellow parchment, with narrow, sloping chin and eyes, and beneath one of them a faint shining mark, like a seam in the parchment, where a scar seared the flesh, the face of a yellow, little old Chinaman.

In the dusk as she had seen it before, she saw it again, and in the fraction of a moment, the dusk received him again, noiselessly, as it had received him before.

Gay had not by any means forgotten her first night on the island: when she lay alone in the cottage on the fringe of the woods in her great exhaustion of mind and physical weariness; when, sleeping, she had seemed to feel a gaze upon her, and stirred to see, or think she saw, the thin yellow face in the gloaming; and had turned again to her sleep, saying dreamily it was but a dream. She had, however, made inquiry casually, and had been told there were no resident Chinese on the island, but that, on rare occasion, one came on errand from Portland, for the delivery of packages, perhaps, or a day's work. It was only as in a dream that she had remembered the face.

But now, with sudden fear, Gay knew it was no dream. She waited for Rand to come up to her.

"Did you—see—him?" she whispered.

"The Chin? Yes. The men must be down at the club house. They always bring some one along to cook, usually a darky, but once it was a Jap. Perhaps they're giving all nations a try by turn." Then he felt Gay's intensity in her silence, the closeness of her hand on his. "Why, Gay, what is the matter? You're not afraid of him! Don't be afraid of a Chin! He never harm anybody. You afraid! A woman who lives alone, and not according to nature and brags about it!"

Although Gay realized that the Females Wallace, as he affectionately called them, must no doubt long since have told Rand the story of the affair in the cove as they knew it, he had never referred to it by word or by suggestion. It was that innate courtesy, that delicate New England reserve, which held sacred from reference a subject that might give pain.

Now, suddenly, Gay wished he would speak of it, would ask her what she had seen, or thought she saw. She wished greatly to talk freely with him, to tell him the surprising things that had happened to her on the island.

The closeness of her clasp on his hand relaxed. "I am not afraid," she said easily. "I just wondered who it was."

There was no sound from the wild growth of brush that lay so thickly about them, no faintest crackle of dried, dead, crumbling needles of pine, but as Gay finished speaking, a dark shadow slipped away, almost from beneath her hand, slipped away, shadow like, and melted with the other shadows. And neither Gay nor Rand suspected one shadow more, or less among the many on either side.

Even when the Bo's'n was ready at last for the trip down the coast, Rand put off his departure as long as he could, and when further delay was impossible, he sent his bags aboard, and with all in readiness for sailing, with the two men chosen for his crew aboard, he slowly climbed the hill for a final breakfast with Gay at eleven o'clock.

Gay was very wistful, very sad.

Evidence That Tigers Select Human Victims

Man-eating tigers of the Indian jungles sometimes appear to single out a certain person and go after him, ignoring all others until they get him, points out Gen. William Mitchell, the noted flying officer, in an article in Liberty. The general tells a story to illustrate his point.

"A native became separated from his companions in the jungle and was chased by a tiger," he writes. "He succeeded in climbing into a tree, while the tiger remained on watch below."

"After a while," General Mitchell continues, "his companions, noting his absence and suspecting that a tiger

Inexcusable Mistake

There is a delightful old Irish woman who keeps a corner fruit stand in a Western town. One day a gentleman disposed to be facetious took up a fine melon from her stall, and said gravely: "You have pretty good apples in this state; but where I come from we have them twice that size."

The old lady looked up from her stool, surveyed the joker coolly and replied in a tone of pity: "Ah, what for should I be wastin' me breath to talk to wan that takes our gooseberries for apples!"

She could not eat, although the breakfast tray for two was most enticingly arrayed. Over her cup of coffee her eyes clung to Rand's eyes, very large, very deep, darkly troubled.

"Rand, please eat," she begged. "You will be very hungry before night! Eat, please eat!"

"Gay, I can't. For the first time in my life, my appetite was all filled up before I began. I hate to go and leave you. Gay, you aren't thinking of going away the first of September, are you? I will make the trip as fast as I can, but I cannot be back by the first. You couldn't go before I return, would you?"

"There's really nothing to hurry me away," she said reasonably. "I like it here, and I do need more rest, and they say—the weather is very nice in September."

"The weather! Are you staying for the weather?"

Gay shook her head. No—for you.

Rand stood up suddenly, and Gay, too, rose slowly. Hand in hand they crossed the pleasant room to the door that opened down upon the bay where the Bo's'n waited for Rand, to take him away.

"I kissed you when I came the first time," he said softly, "wouldn't it rather hurt your feelings if I went away—less affectionately?"

Gay nodded. "Terribly. I should think you didn't like it."

Rand took her in his arms, and kissed her, not once, but many times. "Were you ever in love before, Rand?" Gay asked softly.

"Well—yes," he admitted hesitatingly. "Er—weren't you?"

"Well—yes," she acknowledged, smiling faintly. "But never like this. Rand, never like this."

Her cool, firm, slender fingers caressed his hair, touched his lips, cradled the curve of his chin.

"Rand," she whispered. "Rand."

At three o'clock, with smiling tremulous lips, and tears streaming down her face, but laughing, Gay stood in the highest window of the Lone Pine, and blew a kiss to the wind as Rand turned the Bo's'n east, to sea.

CHAPTER VI

With the first of September came the breaking up of the summer colony. Gay was grateful for the silence after the clamor of young voices, twanging ukuleles, whining saxophones. Adorable, waiting alone at the top of the hill, for Rand to come! If sometimes she was troubled by a vague presentiment, a prophetic suggestion that all her future life would be something like that, waiting for Rand, she stilled it resolutely. She felt that it was doubly sweet to be alone in awaiting his return that of all the summer colony, she alone remained, waiting.

There was a point high on the rocks to the east of the Little Club where she often sat by the hour, chin in hand, gazing dreamily off to sea. Rand would not return that way. He would come by fastest State-of-Maine express, but it was the way he had gone, and so intrigued her fancy.

Chin in hand, eyes misty with dreams, thoughts far away to sea in the south, she sat one day when a voice called up to her from a lower place among the rocks.

"Miss Delane! May I come up?"

Gay turned quickly, and her eyes contracted wonderingly. She smiled. It was the man she had directed to the landing on the fateful day of her discovery in the cove.

"Come up, by all means," she said cordially.

And as he came up, climbing carefully and with a caution that spoke of little custom, she gave him her hand in greeting.

"How in the world did you know my name?" she asked interestedly.

"Oh, Gay Delane! It was on your sketch book that day. Do tell me—I have wondered about it so many times—whatever came of it all? Did the police trace him? Did you ever get back the little sketch, and—"

Very briefly she told him of the disappearance of the sketch.

"Are—are you sure?" he asked doubtfully; almost, it seemed to her, quizzically. "It seems—very—well, unnatural, you know. Why, nobody knew about it—Didn't you drop the book? Couldn't it have fallen out? It seems—"

"Now, don't you think I am crazy," she said with some heat. "Everybody else does. But I am trusting you to trust me."

"I will trust you," he said quickly. "I do. It was bad luck all the way round, and I'm sorry. I wish I had taken the sketch from you by main force. I hate that worst of all losing the sketch. Do you remember the hand—very fine—"

"Don't," she said. "Don't talk of it. I should have done something for that poor boy—but what could I do?"

"Don't think of it. Let's talk of something else.—Are you remaining long on the island? It seems very quiet here now. The summer people have gone, have they not?"

In spite of her best efforts, feeling the curious interest of his eyes, and his words, Gay felt her face flush for her lingering.

"I was worn out," she explained quickly. "I had to have a long rest. I shall stay a little longer—a week or two perhaps. While the weather is nice. I like it better now the summer crowd is gone. Just the nice, good, religious natives are left. And me. I like it. But I did not expect to see you here again."

"I wish I could say I had come only to see you," he said, "but I am afraid I dare not go so far. As a matter of fact, I have learned that they are anticipating rather a land boom around here in the next two or three years, and my partner and I are hoping to pick up something for a song, and sell it after a bit for a—well, a grand opera. I am scouting out the land."

"How interesting. How very interesting!" Gay stood up suddenly. "You offered me tea before, and I refused. I am holder now. Will you tea with me? And tell me about it."

They passed back over the rocks and into the woods, skirting the Little Club, in silence.

"I shall have to take a peep at some of your private papers, I think," Gay said smilingly, as she led the way into the Lone Pine. "Or shall I call you 'Say'?"

"Ingram, Ronald Ingram—I beg your pardon, I seem to feel that I know you so well I quite forgot you did not know my name."

"Well, Mr. Ingram, welcome to the Lone Pine. There is something about you—something New Yorky—that makes me tingle for Times Square."

They were chatting companionably over their tea, chatting of work, of aims and interests, the big things of life, when Auntalmiry came to the door. She came intentionally, knowing there was a guest; Gay knew that at once, realized it with a vague resentment, although knowing it was not like the little old woman to intrude. She was dressed for the occasion, in her best black Sunday silk, with her coral cameo at her throat. There was a flush of excitement in her cheeks, and as she stepped into the room, not glancing at Gay, she swept Ronald Ingram with an eager breathless gaze.

"Oh, Mrs. Bridges, this is Mr. Ingram," Gay said lightly. "Mrs. Bridges, for company," she explained laughingly. "Auntalmiry to all us home-folks. Sit down, Auntalmiry; tea's nice and hot."

"Yes—yes, I will," Auntalmiry sat down stiffly, her eyes still intent on the young man who had crossed the room to stand by her chair as she sank into it. And intent upon his face, the light faded suddenly from her eyes, the flush died in her cheeks. All in a moment she was smaller, older, very tired.

A little later Mr. Ingram went away with many warm and pleasant words, and with a last light lingering touch on Gay's hand. Their eyes met, understandingly, as they smiled farewell. When Gay returned to Auntalmiry she was sitting wilted slightly in the chair, and her face was sad.

"Gay, you will excuse me, won't you? For coming like that, when you had company. I saw him on the piazza—a stranger—and I thought maybe Buddy had come."

"Buddy? Do you mean Rand?"

"No, Buddy—my son, Buddy."

"Auntalmiry, your son! Have you a son? Oh, I didn't know you had a son. Why didn't you tell me?"

"Yes, Buddy, my son. I didn't tell you, dearie, because we aren't like that. We just hold things in our hearts, sad things, and say nothing. The glad things, too, perhaps, too much. We don't scatter our feelings, good or bad; we shut them. I thought perhaps some one else had told you."

"No. No one on this island has ever mentioned your son—Buddy. I never heard of him before."

"We are like that," she said faintly. "We hold one another's secrets to ourselves. They would talk to each other—but no one would tell me—sadness—to an outsider, one who didn't belong."

"Was it a sadness, Auntalmiry, having the son?"

Auntalmiry's eyes glowed suddenly, but her voice remained mild and even. "It was heaven," she said gently. "But he went away—and never came back."

"Oh! I am sorry."

"He was a gypsy boy, Buddy, like his father. His father was a singer who came here one summer—a fine singer. But he was a gypsy. He went away, too. I—I didn't mind that so much."

"There is very little difference between one man and another, but that little is very important."

"The world's mine oyster, which I with sword will open."

NICE THINGS TO EAT

This is the time of year when we enjoy confections of all kinds and like, too, to make them.

Candied Grapefruit.—Remove the rind from a grapefruit, cut into long strips, cover with boiling salted water and bring to a boil. Drain and repeat four times, the last time boiling until tender. Drain and weigh, allowing a pound of sugar, one cupful of water and a pound of grapefruit rind. Boil the sugar and water for five minutes, add the grapefruit and simmer until it is transparent—about half an hour. Drain, roll each piece in granulated sugar and dry on a tray near the heat.

Fruit Cocktail.—Take one large grapefruit, two large oranges, one can of sliced pineapple, one-half cupful of white grapes, one cupful of white cherries, one cupful of sugar, one small bottle of maraschino cherries. Remove the seeds from the grapefruit and oranges and scoop out the fruit with a spoon. Cut the pineapple into small pieces, remove the seeds from the cherries, cut grapes into halves and remove the seeds. Pour over the sugar which has been cooked with some of the fruit juice to a sirup and cooled. Let stand in an earthen dish twenty-four hours before serving. Serve well chilled.

Turkey à la Tetrastini.—Blend three tablespoonfuls of butter and flour together, add one teaspoonful of salt and one-fourth teaspoonful each of celery salt and pepper. Now add one cupful of cream, heated to the boiling point, stir until boiling. Add one cupful of cold turkey cut into cubes, one-half cupful of cooked spaghetti cut into short lengths, one-half cupful of mushrooms. Stir all together for a moment over the fire, then fill into ramekins; cover with buttered crumbs mixed with a little grated cheese and bake until brown.

Hawaiian Salad.—Place a slice of pineapple on a leaf of lettuce. On it arrange alternate sections of orange and grapefruit. Remove all the connecting tissue from the fruit. Between each section place a piece of ripe olive. In the center of the pineapple place a ball of seasoned cheese; serve with French dressing.

Small quantities of fruits in gelatin make most delicious desserts or salads.

Try Some of These.

The pies of the Blue Grass country are different from the Northern pastries, richer, but more tasty.

Bisque Pie.—Cook together a pint of milk, one-half cupful of granulated sugar, the yolks of five eggs to a rich custard, add a tablespoonful of cornstarch, moistened with a little cold milk and cook until thick; then add half a dozen macaroons crushed, one-fourth pound of candied cherries chopped, the same of candied pineapple, with one-fourth teaspoonful of almond extract and one-half teaspoonful of vanilla. Pour the filling into two baked crusts and top with meringue using the egg whites and ten tablespoonfuls of sugar, two crushed macaroons and vanilla and almond flavoring. Brown in a moderate oven and serve with cream.

Cream Davoli.—Take one large cooked chicken. Cut the meat from it and grind fine, adding one-fourth pound of lean ham, also ground; crumbs from a small loaf of bread soaked in chicken broth and squeezed dry. Mix the meat and crumbs, then add a teaspoonful of white pepper, a dash of cayenne, two tablespoonfuls of grated onion, a grating of nutmeg and enough sweet cream to make the mixture into a loaf. Press into a greased pan and steam three hours. Serve with:

Mushroom Sauce.—Cook two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour and when well blended add one pint of thin cream. Simmer and cook until thick. Add one can of fresh mushrooms which have been cut fine and cooked in butter five minutes.

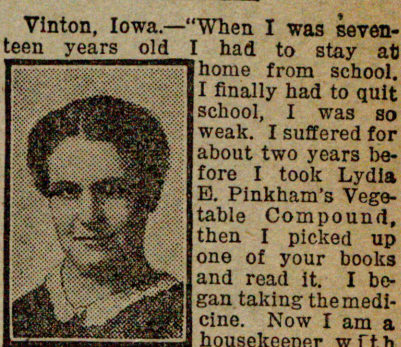

Taffy Apples.—Core apples and fill the centers with nuts. Dip into a brown sugar sirup which has been boiled until it is crisp in water. Roll the apples and fasten a skewer in the center of each. The children will like these simple and wholesome sweets.

Cornish Pie.—Prepare a rich biscuit crust and line a deep pastry tin. Into the crust lay a layer of cubed round beefsteak with plenty of the suet or butter, cover with a layer of slightly cooked rutabaga and then a layer of thinly sliced uncooked potatoes; sprinkle with plenty of salt and pepper to season and cover with a crust with a vent for the steam to escape. Bake for two hours or until the vegetables are well done. Take from the oven, wrap in a cloth and let steam to soften and season the crust for ten minutes. Serve hot.

GIRLHOOD TO MOTHERHOOD

Iowa Woman Found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Always Helpful

Vinton, Iowa.—"When I was seventeen years old I had to stay at home from school. I finally had to quit school, I was so weak. I suffered for about two years before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, then I picked up one of your books and read it. I began taking the medicine. Now I am a housekeeper with six children, and I have taken it before each one was born. I cannot tell you all the good I have received from it. When I am not as well as can be I take it. I have been doing this for over thirteen years and it always helps me. I read all of your little books I can get and I tell everyone I know what the Vegetable Compound does for me."—Mrs. FRANK SELLERS, 510 7th Avenue, Vinton, Iowa.

Many girls in the fourth generation are learning through their own personal experiences the beneficial effects of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mothers who took it when they were young are glad to recommend it to their daughters.

For over half a century, women have praised this reliable medicine.

Women, Why Suffer Needlessly?

Indianapolis, Ind.—"When I arrived at middle life I was in very poor health and soon decided to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, because so many women had told me of the wonderful benefit they had received from it. I am now glad to recommend it myself because it was a wonderful benefit to me. From girlhood to middle life the 'Favorite Prescription' is a woman's friend."—Mrs. Mattie Galladay, 806 E. New York St.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is sold by all dealers, in liquid or tablet form; or, send 10 cents for trial package of tablets to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, 605 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

What a baby doesn't put into its mouth it puts in its nose.

The BABY

Why do so many, many babies of today escape all the little fretful spells and infantile ailments that used to worry mothers through the day, and keep them up half the night?

If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered pure, harmless Castoria. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. And its gentle influence seems felt all through the tiny system. Not even a distasteful dose of castor oil does so much good.

Fletcher's Castoria is purely vegetable, so you may give it freely, at first sign of colic; or constipation; or diarrhea. Or those many times when you just don't know what is the matter. For real sickness, call the doctor, always. At other times, a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria.

The doctor often tells you to do just that; and always says Fletcher's. Other preparations may be just as pure, just as free from dangerous drugs, but why experiment? Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold!

NEW LENOX

The New Lenox Royal Neighbors held a public installation of officers at the Grange Hall on Tuesday evening. The installation ceremony was beautiful and impressive. Mrs. Ella Button was the installing officer and Mrs. Pfaff was ceremonial marshal. The officers installed are as follows:

Oracle, Lottie Lockwood
Vice-Oracle, Elizabeth Braun
Past Oracle, Anna Bethell
Chancellor, Ella Button
Recorder, Daisy Lorber
Receiver, Mrs. Osmus
Marshal, Lillian McCleary
Asst. Marshal, Edna Beadle
Inner Sentinel, Lucile Drake
Outer Sentinel, Myrtle Alexander
Musician, Edith Wilson

Graces: Nona Dennis, Alice Miller, Mrs. Masek, Mrs. Seibert, Loretta Braun, Leona Hilton.

Following the installation refreshments were served, Mrs. Pfaff, Mrs. Maina and Mrs. Lorber being in charge.

The next social meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Howard Ayers on the last Thursday in January.

The Ladies Aid of the M. E. church met with Mrs. D. M. Lockwood Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Button and daughter Janet of Chicago, have been visiting with the formers mother, Mrs. Ella Button.

Funeral services for Edward Kubus who was killed by a Rock Island train were held in Chicago on Saturday.

Mrs. Edward Francis who has been ill with pneumonia is much improved.

Edward Osmus is ill.

Mrs. George Bethell and infant son William Alfred, have returned from the Silver Cross hospital.

Spaghetti Now Americanized

The American people eat five pounds of spaghetti per capita per year. Most of the spaghetti, macaroni and kindred products used to be imported from Italy, but 99 per cent of what we eat is now manufactured in the United States.

Happiness

Half the world is on the wrong scent in the pursuit of happiness. They think it consists in having and getting and in being served by others. It consists in giving and in serving others.—Henry Drummond.

Voice of a Snake

Besides the little hiss that seems to be common with most snakes they are generally incompetent to make any noise. There is one snake, however, the big water python or anaconda of Brazil, which gives a peculiar piercing cry at night.
